HOW IT WORKS

Every friend votes on a ballot, you count the votes by hand or in the spreadsheet, and the winner of each category takes a crown. Ties are settled by two written rules, so nobody has to argue.

How to play Most Likely To

A friend says who is most likely to do something silly, sweet or ambitious; the table votes; the friend with the most votes wears the crown. Twelve categories make a good half hour.

1. Pick your categories. The twelve on the ballots are PG starters. For a different mix, cross out a starter on the blank ballots and tally sheet and write yours in, or, in the spreadsheet in this download, add up to six of your own to the category bank and pick them in the dropdown; its Ballot tab prints the categories you pick.
2. Print one ballot per friend: page 4 has the Willow Lane names pre-printed as a model, and page 5 works for any group, because each vote is written on a line. Everyone votes for ONE friend in every row. Votes for yourself count like any other vote.
3. Collect the ballots and count each row on the tally sheet (page 6), top to bottom: one tally mark per vote.
4. Crown the friend with the most votes in each row, and read the crowns out one by one. A friend can win any number of crowns.

IF TWO FRIENDS TIE

Rule 1: the friend with the FEWEST crowns already won in the rows above takes it, so the crowns spread around the table. Count top to bottom and it always works.
Rule 2: still tied? The LOWEST draw number wins. Before the games, everyone pulls a number from a hat (1 to however many of you there are); write it beside her name.
Either way, write which rule settled the row on the tally sheet. Page 3 shows both rules at work.

WANT THE COUNTING DONE FOR YOU?

Open Free-Most-Likely-To-Winner-Tally.xlsx in Excel (or import it into Google Sheets). Type your friends' names and draw numbers on Setup, choose your categories, and pick whom each friend voted for: it counts the votes, names each winner, and says which rule settled every tie. Its Ballot tab prints a ballot with your friends' names on it.

PRINTING TIPS

- Print at 100% (Actual size) on Letter or A4 paper.
- Pages 4 and 5 hold two ballots each: cut on the dashed line.
- Page 4 is a model; pages 5 and 6 are yours to print again for every party.

The Willow Lane crew's count

Eight friends voted in twelve categories. Each row shows how many votes each friend got; the winner's count is in a dark box, and a friend tied at the top is in gold. Rows are counted top to bottom, so rule 1 can see the crowns won in the rows above.

12	say "one more episode" at 2 a.m.					2	4		2	Rosie (4)	Clear winner

Category 6 (most likely to talk their way out of a parking ticket): Tasha and Dani tied on 3 votes. Before this category they held Tasha 1 crown, Dani 0 crowns. Dani held the fewest, so Dani takes the crown (rule 1).

Category 2 (most likely to cry at a commercial): Elena and Rosie tied on 3 votes and were level on crowns too (0 crowns each). The draw numbers decide it: Elena 1, Rosie 3. Elena drew the lowest number, so Elena takes the crown (rule 2).

CROWNS AFTER TWELVE ROWS

Priya 2, Elena 2, Rosie 2, Kim 2, Maya 1, Jordan 1, Tasha 1, Dani 1. Draw numbers: Maya 5, Priya 2, Jordan 7, Elena 1, Tasha 8, Rosie 3, Kim 6, Dani 4.

Every name and vote here is invented: the Willow Lane crew is fictional.

Blank ballots: write in the names

The same twelve starter categories, with a line for each vote, so it suits any group of any size: each friend writes the name of one friend per row. Votes for yourself count. Two ballots per page: cut on the dashed line.

Crown tally

Count each category's votes, write the winner, and note which rule settled a tie. Work top to bottom: rule 1 looks at crowns already won in the rows above.

#	Most likely to …	Votes (tally marks)	Winner	Tie? rule 1 or 2
1	become famous
2	cry at a commercial
3	adopt five pets
4	plan the group trip
5	be late to their own party
6	talk their way out of a parking ticket
7	win a reality cooking show
8	send a voice memo instead of a text
9	know everyone's birthday
10	start a business
11	get lost with the GPS on
12	say "one more episode" at 2 a.m.

Rule 1: on a tie, the friend with fewer crowns already won takes it. Rule 2: still tied, the lower draw number wins.

From one game to the whole night

You have ballots, a tally sheet and a spreadsheet that counts the votes and settles every tie. When the whole party is playing all evening, the full pack does the rest.
